Medicine Hat Has Greatest Crowd In History For Visit

International Crowd Cheers Lustily as Their Majesties Mingle With Crowd at the Station—12,000 Visitors

By A. J. N. TERRILL
Canadian Press Correspondent

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., May 26.—With an international crowd cheering lustily, King George and Queen Elizabeth came to Medicine Hat today in bright, sunny weather, to be met by a throng of 12,000 visitors.

An estimated 12,000 men, women and children from surrounding areas and the northern United States swelled Medicine Hat's normal population of 9,500 for the historic visit.

The visit was six minutes longer than scheduled. Arriving on the dot at 10:10 a.m. M.T., the train was scheduled to leave at 10:25. It pulled out from the station at 10:31 a.m. with crowds cheering.

Thousands Pour Into South City As Hour Of Arrival Nears

By SAM G. ROSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CALGARY, May 26.—The old west reigned in modern Calgary today as thousands poured into the city in bright, sunny weather to shout loyal cheers to King George and Queen Elizabeth.

Ten-gallon hats, bright-bud shirts, Indian regalia and the smart tops of the younger generation gave Eighth Avenue and other busy downtown streets a blaze of color.

The influx of visitors—expected to reach around 100,000 to more than double the city's normal population of 87,000—started yesterday and reached its apex today. Throngs were on downtown streets early.

Special trains rolled in from all sections of the rolling foothills and prairie stretches, bringing school children and adults. The school

TWO ATTEMPTS MADE ON LIFE OF MUSSOLINI

PARIS, May 26.—The newspaper Paris-Sur, in a dispatch from Nice, reported that two attempts had been made within the last month to assassinate Premier Mussolini of Italy.

Both would-be assassins were executed, the dispatch said. It added the first attempt was made April 27 and the second early in May before Mussolini's departure on a tour of the Riviera.

The first man was executed April 28 and the other on the night he committed the crime, the newspaper said.

The second would-be assassin was quoted as saying during his questioning: "I know that I would die but I sacrificed my life to rid Italy of the man who oppresses us. A few hundred of us hope we will have some and we hope we will soon realize it."

Despite pressure placed upon him by Italian police, Paris-Sur said, he refused to divulge the names of his friends.

Last Of Italy's Arms In Spain Returning Home

ROME, May 26.—The government has announced that 4,600 Italian soldiers, the last of more than 40,000 admitted officially, have been sent to Spain during the civil war, where to be brought home.

Fascist expected King Victor Emmanuel to go to Naples to greet them "within the current month."

Queen Mary's Car

Queen Mary, mother of King George, had a narrow escape from death or serious injury when her automobile, swerving to avoid collision with a truck, overturned and rolled down an embankment.

King George wore a lounge suit and was bareheaded, while the Queen wore a beige ensemble with an off-white hat. Prime Minister Mackenzie King presented Mayor Lang and Mrs. Lang to their Majesties and the mayor presented Archie Mitchell, M.P., and Mrs. Mitchell, and Dr. J. L. Robinson, M.L.A., and Mrs. Robinson.

Mrs. C. A. Anderson, Great War veteran, presented her Majesty with a bouquet of roses.

As the blue and silver train came to a stop, a band played "God Save the King" and the 1st Southern Alberta Regiment fired a Royal Salute. Their Majesties stood at attention as

Mortgage Bank Bill Is Passed Second Reading

OTTAWA, May 26.—The House of Commons today passed the central mortgage bank bill through second reading and sent it to the banking and commerce committee for study.

The bill which provides for a government-owned institution to share part of the cost of a write-down of mortgage debts by loan companies coming under its scope and a general reduction and regulation of interest rates, passed "on division" but without a formal recorded vote.

Padewersky, 78, To Return Home For Needed Rest

NEW YORK, May 26.—Weary and ailing, 78-year-old Padewersky, who has been in the city since he was 18 years old, decided today to return to his home in Switzerland.

Padewersky, a famous pianist and former premier of Poland, suffered a slight heart attack last night in his dressing room shortly before a scheduled concert at Madison Square Garden.

TORONTO, May 26.—The King and Queen were greeted by the Dominion Meteorological office for a fine holiday at Banff, Alta., where they will rest until Sunday. There will be a "generally fair" weather forecast for Saturday.

Royal Train Speeds Over Alberta Line

CALGARY, May 26.—Carrying King George and Queen Elizabeth into the rolling foothills of the west, the Royal train arrived in Calgary today to accompaniment of cheers from young and old, the skirt of pipes and a 21-gun salute.

ON BOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 26.—The King and Queen came in sight of the Rocky Mountains shortly before 2 o'clock today.

As their blue and silver home on the range wound over the rolling foothills west of Medicine Hat the weather was perfect.

Great clouds under a hazy sunny white sky stretched over the foothills to the peaks beyond, as the snow marked mountains arose above and behind the skyline.

AIR OF SPRINGTIME
There were sheep and cattle on the ranges, but here and there the young spring wheat was sprouting and there was an air of springtime over all.

The humble little shacks and shanties dotted the countryside, and at such settlements as Sheephouse people gathered to cheer the King and Queen on the way to Calgary.

To their Majesties Alberta will be appearing as a land of brilliant sunshine with the dark serrations of the Rocky Mountains shining white where the sun breaks through the clouds in the west.

FOURTH GREAT SCENE
The King and Queen have passed the prairies and late this afternoon enter their fourth great scenic appreciation. There was the great view of the St. Lawrence, the rugged scenery around the Great Lakes, then the broad prairies, and tonight their entry into Rocky Mountain country and a weekend at Banff.

TRAFFIC RULES ARE CLARIFIED BY COMMITTEE

Royal Visit Street Regulations Are Outlined For the Public

Special statement was issued Friday by the Royal Visit committee to clarify the arrangements governing vehicular and pedestrian traffic next Friday.

It was claimed that some of the regulations previously announced, have been misunderstood by the public.

The committee's statement follows: All available street cars will be in service, with special service being supplemented by extras whenever and where the traffic demands.

These street cars will run up to within one half an hour of the time their Majesties are scheduled to arrive.

QUEEN MARY, 72, REMAINS QUIET ON NATAL DAY

(Turns to Page 13 for special story)

Canadian Press Staff Writer
LONDON, May 26.—Great Britain's best known grandmother, Queen Mary, became 72 today in a birthday anniversary of unusual quiet and unusual interest.

The beloved Queen Mother remained close to her flower-filled apartment in her Marlborough House residence, messages of sympathy and birthday congratulations being poured in from all parts of the Empire.

The devoted birthday morning commenced her Majesty had spent a quiet night and said progress continued to be satisfactory. However, it asserted the "Doctor of Life" eyes must necessarily be slow.

Engagements have been undertaken and cancelled as a result of an accident, but the Queen was comforted by gifts, banks of flowers and hundreds of messages of sympathy and birthday congratulations which poured in from all parts of the Empire.

It really must have been a relief when they caught the Royal car two miles down, Denbary avenue from the barracks, well on its way to the railway station and a rest along train.

Picture at top shows His Majesty, delivering his Empire Day speech at Winnipeg. Central picture shows Their Majesties defy an incessant rainfall in the Manitoba capital, driving in an open car in order that the assembled throngs might see them. An umbrella for Her Majesty was their only protection. The honor guard in a troop of Lord Strathcona Horse, R.C. Picture below shows P. Dr. Dafoe Is Sued By Dionnes For Damages

NORTH BAY, Ont. May 26.—An action seeking unpaid damages for alleged libel has been started against Dr. Allan R. Dafoe, physician, by the Dionnes, a family of 11 children, in the Ontario court.

A writ filed here Wednesday alleges Dr. Dafoe appeared before the Ontario court in a uniform of the Ontario "Doctor of Life" and carrying a bag marked "Life".

SACRAMENTO POLICED BY WOMEN COPS

SACRAMENTO, Calif., May 26.—Women "cops" took over the city today. More than 200 strong, they patrolled the downtown district on foot and on motor-cycles, handed out tags, directed traffic, and bewitched at straggling pedestrians and motorists. It was women's day of Safety Week.

Queen Mary, Busy As Ever At 72, Finds Self The Most Popular Woman In Britain

By MILTON BRONNER
Bulletin Staff Correspondent
LONDON, May 25.—Queen Mary, the most popular woman in Great Britain.

The crowds which assemble to cheer her wherever she goes, the excitement in the movie theatres when her picture is shown on the screen, all go to prove it. She celebrates her 72nd birthday today. Two years past the British three score and ten. Queen Mary shows no sign of slowing down. In fact, if anything, she is even more active than when her husband, the late King George V, was still alive. And it is not as if life had been tedious to her. Within a compass of one short year Fate hit her two very hard blows. On January 20, 1920, she lost her husband, after more than 42 years of happy marriage and close companionship. In December of the same year her eldest son, King Edward VIII, abdicated the throne and went into voluntary exile.

In the past year she has been a consistent attendant at movies. She has gone to many theatrical shows. She has heard good musical art performances. Most of the time, especially with the movie, Queen Mary attends a premiere where tickets are sold in terms of dollars rather than of cents.

ENJOYS HER FLOCK OF GRANDCHILDREN

By day her car is apt to be seen in some quiet byways where there is an antique shop. She is an expert in antiques. By gifts and by inheritance, she has an enormous collection of jewels, china, rare old lace and fans, pretty gew-gaws. That makes no difference. She keeps adding to her collection. There are substitutions, too. Whenever she finds that she likes a thing married, she is apt to receive from the dowager something rare and precious and old.

The last ten years of the Queen's life have been brightened by her flock of grandchildren—Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose, daughters of King George and Queen Elizabeth; Prince Edward and Princess Alexandra, children of the Duke and Duchess of Kent. Of course, there are her other two grandchildren, sons of Princess Mary and Lord Harewood. But they are 18 and 15 and most of the time are off at school. It is the younger children she sees the most. At the present time, with the King and Queen visiting in Canada, Queen Mary has taken upon herself the job of keeping Princess Elizabeth and Margaret Rose amused.

Scenes From Royal Show

REGINA, May 25.—There's kinship among those who wear berets. They stick together at big moments. As the King and Queen arrived in the city of Regina, they were met here Thursday a little girl in a bright red beret, daughter of a guard rope and lived up with the blue beret war veterans standing at attention along the roadway.

VANCOUVER, May 25.—Wearing the same uniform which he has worn on many occasions in England during Queen Victoria's Jubilee celebrations in 1887, Major C. B. Fowler, V.D., 91, will take his place with the Imperial veterans in a guard of honor for the King and Queen here May 29.

NELSON, B.C., May 25.—Population of cities in the British Columbia Kootenay district have begun to die during the past few days with citizens leaving under all modes of travel for points on the coast route of the Royal tour.

STEWART, B.C., May 25.—About 50 citizens of this northern British Columbia town have left for Vancouver to see the King and Queen May 29 while those not able to make the long journey will celebrate the occasion fittingly at home.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., May 25.—Two 40-pound trout caught in the Fraser river today, chilled in water, green peas, cold storage and corn-on-the-cob from a New Westminster cannery were sent by Mayor Fred Hume last night as a gift to news writers aboard the pilot train which is preceding the Royal train on the coast of Canada.

TORONTO, May 25.—Mrs. Ralph Day, wife of Toronto's mayor, heard today why her jinks bothered her during the visit of the King and Queen Monday. Mrs. Day, 55, was accompanying Their Majesties on the trip but thought she merely had twisted the ankle.

Conscription Bill Passed In House of Lords

LONDON, May 25.—The House of Lords Thursday passed the government's conscription bill. The bill previously had been approved by the House of Commons, but now goes back to the lower house for consideration of several minor amendments.

Final parliamentary approval is expected before the bill enters into law. The bill makes 20-year-old men in England, Scotland and Wales liable to six months of military training. Conscription for the first year are expected to total about 200,000 men. The first group to be called up about July 1.

At 72, Queen Mary is even more active than when George V was alive. Above, she receives a purse from a young admirer after opening a Home for Working Women.

Regina, Moose Jaw Pay Warm Tribute To Their Majesties

Old "Pile of Bones" Lives Up to Her Royal Name—Moose Jaw is Blaze of White and Colored Lights

By THOMAS WATLING
Edmonton Bulletin Staff Correspondent

ABOARD ROYAL PRESS TRAIN, May 25.—The regal city of Regina and the drought-stricken city of Moose Jaw received Their Majesties Thursday. Regina, old "Pile of Bones," lived up to her royal name, and a royal welcome she gave to the King and Queen.

Moose Jaw, hardest hit community in the drought area, showed no signs of hardship last night when the paid tribute to Their Majesties last night. Thursday was a drive around Moose Jaw. Only half an hour was allotted to the city, but in that half hour the King and Queen were acclaimed in such fashion that they would not leave until they had talked with some of the people.

These personal friendly chats are becoming the chief feature of Their Majesties' Royal progress. It rained during the procession at Moose Jaw but on their return to the station the King and Queen walked over to the sick folk who had been brought down from the hospital to see the parade. The Queen, clad with the nurses and the King, who have a personal touch and the feeling of sympathy with whom. Their Majesties talk declare that the friendly inquiries deeply touched them.

BLAZE OF LIGHT
Moose Jaw was a blaze of light along the route as strings of white and colored lights were strung and the broad roadway was brightly lit. The moment Their Majesties stepped from the station this long avenue of light lay before them.

The Chinese of Moose Jaw showed their loyalty by turning out in their native costume, an example followed by the Ukrainians.

From Winnipeg, westward the King and Queen had seen the real world origin of Western Canada. Predominantly British, with some French, the prairie contains no mixtures from all the lands of the world, and many of the descendants of these foreign born Canadians have turned out in their old world costumes to greet and cheer the royal couple.

To the laughing, eager faces of the folk of Moose Jaw, it was hard to realize that they have been in the depths of poverty during the depression and that the area tributary to the city had yielded little or no revenue by reason of drought, grasshoppers and other ills.

Regina has more time and space and place to welcome Their Majesties and the program was varied and ambitious. Being the western headquarters of the R.C.M.P. the district and civil was in evidence everywhere. The highlight of Their Majesties' visit to the city was at the R.C.M.P. barracks. They inspected an ambulance brought by Scottish funds for an Indian mission. Their Majesties talked to the nurses, Mrs. Hume and Mrs. Hume. They gave a picture of herself and her two children to one of the nurses. The picture will be put in the ambulance.

INSPECTED BARRACKS
Their Majesties inspected the barracks and then went into the old historical chapel built in the early

BANFF READY TO WELCOME KING, QUEEN

Their Majesties To Get Rest There Over the Week-End

BANFF, May 25.—Hush up in the Rocky Mountains, Banff is ready to welcome King George and Queen Elizabeth and after a rest period on their Canadian tour.

Their Majesties will leave Banff on the weekend of the Rockies at 2:30 p.m. tonight on their arrival in Medicine Hat and Calgary. They leave, bound for the Pacific coast, Sunday morning.

No great influx of tourists is expected in the National Park for the visit. Ceremonies on their arrival will be brief, and then Their Majesties will rest before continuing their Canadian visit.

Centre of Banff National Park, the town of Banff, nestled in the Rockies 4333 feet above sea level—almost a mile towering mountains surround the town. Lakes and beauty spots await them. And it is planned that Their Majesties will see some of the best of the National Park from an old-fashioned western buggy. They are expected to drive in the buggy over a scenic route. But mainly it will be a rest period for Their Majesties.

ARCHBISHOP LAUDS KING'S MAY 24 TALK

Proof Commonwealth Nations Are United In Loyalty

LONDON, May 25.—The King's Empire Day broadcast from his ship was described by the Archbishop of Canterbury today as a striking proof that all nations embraced by the Commonwealth are one family united in loyalty to the great heritage of freedom and peace.

The Archbishop, Rt. Rev. Cosmo Gordon Lang, made the remark in an address to a Canadian gathering in St. Mary Woolnoth Church for the annual British Columbia service. The old church, in the heart of London, has been looked upon as British Columbia's church in London since 1904 when it presented an Elizabethan flag to the Church of England Cathedral in Victoria on the occasion of the Lord Mayors' visit to Canada's Pacific coast.

GAIN NEW STRENGTH

The Prime Minister, who spoke of "a new strength" which has shrouded our hearts of Canada's enthusiastic welcome to Their Majesties, said that during present anxious times there were disquieting signs that our heritage might be imperilled, but loyalty to it will gain new strength in the resolve to defend it.

Vincent Massey, Canadian high commissioner in London, read the lesson. Sir Frank Bower, the Lord Mayor, attended in state. Rt. Hon. B. B. Bennett, former Canadian Prime Minister, also was present.

Hotel Opened

VANCOUVER, May 25.—The palatial $1,000,000 Hotel Vancouver was officially opened yesterday to replace an older structure that served the public for more than half a century.

Three cheers rang out from 650 distinguished guests in the new hotel as the British Columbia Lieutenant Governor Eric W. Hamber officially declared the new hotel open.

HEUL, Que., May 25.—Mrs. Olivia Gird, 46, and a grandson, Maurice, five, were hurried to death today in a fire which swept their home here.

Royalty Sees Redman's Cunning

All the red man's cunning art went to produce the many gifts which were brought to a model Ojibway village laid out at Fort William for the King and Queen to visit when they stopped on their way west. The Queen showed great interest in this decorated basket, in the snow shoes, and queried one of the Indian mothers about the "pik-shack" cradle in which she carried her babies. The sturdy, graceful lines of birch bark canoe, drawn up on the bank of the nearby McIntyre river, caught the King's attention, and he watched Ojibway braves skillfully paddling their canoe back and forth across the river.

Attracted at the Ojibway camp at Fort William by a beautiful little Indian girl, Her Majesty displayed personal interest. "How old are you, my dear?" asked Her Majesty. The devoted child understood not a word, but stood innocent. The Indian aged standing to the right of the King, ascertained that the child was eight.

squash, tennis, racket and exercise are fine exercises and exciting to play if you have the constitution for it. All those games are inclined to be a little rough on the ticker. Nobody ever goes to see them played, mainly because there is never any room for spectators in or about the courts.

Concoct use themselves and their art very seriously and have annual races and championships which are held practically in private unless they are of free choice. I once permitted and staged a canoe Marathon around Manhattan Island, which cured me.

QUIET DEVOTES
 Bowling has probably more quiet devotees among the common people than almost any other sport, with the possible exception of golfing and fishing. Thousands of people bowl for the fun of it and the mild exercise, and when the championships are held, there are from twelve to fourteen thousand spectators.

Bowling is thoroughly satisfactory even during the coldest weather, and is nothing like collecting three fellow drinkers and wandering over to the nearest parlor or alley, there to remove the shirt, roll up the shirt-sleeves, loosen the necktie and open the collar, light up a stentent cigar, holler for beer, and bowl until your arms ache. In the interim, while the other fellows are bowling, one can get excellent practice in writing at typewriter. The bowling alley is practically the hub, remaining strongholds of the early American cultural development.

The most overrated spectator sport I know of is polo, and while it has its charms, generally to extract the sweat drops that go to get it has equalled me never know in my early youth as number six on the Columbia trail. I rowed four miles down the Hudson past banked muddy black mud people. The regattas are difficult to get to and even more difficult to get away from. If you haven't a seat on the observation train—and the supply of seats are limited—you're perhaps ten minutes of the race.

The Intercollegiate Regatta at Poughkeepsie sometimes turns up some pretty good displays between crews fighting for the lead, but the average Harvard-Yale race is a procession, with one of the oarsmen up a two- or three-length lead and holding or increasing it down the river. The only way really to see a crew race is from an airplane. Most of the spectators are pretty bored with them, but go for the party and in order to be able to say they've been. I can't think of any other reason.

SHARP DIFFERENCES
There's a difference between things. There's a sharp difference between a man and a woman, for instance. But the woman always wins.
A free, although applied almost like a train, leaves at almost time. Another difference: time has back on it: a train only has a conductor.
Many a man has regretted arguing with a friend. He came too near having his own way.
The true gentleman never permits sharp differences to arise. He lives for his well.

FRANCE HOPES CRACK RIDDLE RUSS STRENGTH

PARIS, May 26.—French military leaders now have a chance today to crack the riddle of Russia's military strength under the assistance agreement among France, Great Britain and the Soviet which now is nearing completion.

France co-operated closely on a British note to Moscow, which a reliable informant said called for reciprocal obligations among the three nations in the event of direct or indirect attack made on any one of them.

The government was reported to

Russian military strength long has been a mystery, and the French hope, through staff talks, to get a valuable insight into conditions
